

Expository Writing

We use expository writing to explain
Provide the reader with some information
Use examples from your main idea
Introduction, Three Bodies, and Conclusion

The introduction should start with a discussion
About the subject to pull the reader in
Don't forget the reasons or examples
That will support the main idea

Each body will focus on the topic
Use examples to prove it to the reader
Use details from your life or your research
That will support the main idea

In conclusion, I feel I should remind you
Restate your main idea
Go over each of your examples
Leave the reader with a feeling or a question
